Using your eVisa

Your eVisa details reflect our electronic record of your visa. Check that the eVisa details match the passport(s) of all visa holder(s) before you travel and contact us immediately if you see any errors. You do not need a visa label in your passport.

Do not attempt to change anything on this letter. It is an offence under the Immigration Act 2009 to use a document that you know has been altered.

You can only hold one visa at a time. If you held a previous visa, it is no longer valid and has been replaced by this work visa.

Print this document and carry it with your passport when travelling

You may be asked to show this letter when you check in for your flight to New Zealand and when you arrive at the New Zealand border. If you cannot show this letter when asked the airline may not let you board your flight or you may be delayed in entering New Zealand.

Travelling to New Zealand

Before you travel to New Zealand

If you are outside of New Zealand, you must complete a New Zealand Traveller Declaration to enter the country. You can complete a declaration online 24 hours before you start your journey to New Zealand at: www.travellerdeclaration.govt.nz.

When you arrive

When you arrive at the New Zealand border, you must request entry permission, even if you hold a valid visa.

To request entry permission, you must complete a New Zealand Traveller Declaration and either:

- present your passport to an immigration officer
- use an eGate or SmartGate if you hold an eligible passport.

An immigration officer might ask you to provide evidence to support your entry into New Zealand. This could include showing that you can:

- financially support yourself while you are in New Zealand
- leave New Zealand and travel to a country you have the right to enter, such as having a paid travel ticket, enough money to purchase a ticket, or an approved scholarship.

You may also need to show this evidence when you check in for your flight. If you cannot show that you will be able to leave New Zealand, you may not be allowed to travel or enter here.

Our website has more information about our entry requirements: www.immigration.govt.nz/arriving.

If any of your circumstances change

While you are outside of New Zealand, and when you arrive in New Zealand and apply for entry permission, you must tell us about any relevant changes to your circumstances or the circumstances of anyone who was included in your application, as this may affect your ability to enter and stay in New Zealand.

This could include changes to your or their:

- health
- criminal or deportation history
- business, employment or course of study
- personal or family circumstances.

While you are in New Zealand

You cannot stay in New Zealand without a visa

You must always hold a valid visa while you are in New Zealand. If you want to stay in New Zealand after your visa expires, you will need to apply for another visa before your current visa expires. If you want to apply for another visa, you should do so at least 1 month before your current visa expires.

If you remain in New Zealand without a valid visa, you will be in New Zealand unlawfully. This will make you liable for deportation. If you are deported, this will affect your ability to come to New Zealand in the future or to travel to other countries.

For more information, visit our website: www.immigration.govt.nz/expired-visa.

If you renew or replace your passport

If you get a new passport while this visa is still valid, you must ask us to update your visa details so that they match your new passport.

Our website tells you how to transfer your visa to a new passport: www.immigration.govt.nz/transfervisa.

Your employment rights

Your eVisa shows your work conditions.

You have the same minimum rights as any other employee in New Zealand. This includes the right to:

- public holidays
- leave
- work breaks
- wages
- written employment agreements.
